HOUSTON GOES HOLLYWOOD!

The Museum District glittered with old Hollywood—and new H-Town—royalty for the grand opening of Mosaic on Hermann Park. Arriving attendees, dressed mostly in black per the invite's instructions, first passed live Oscar statues and got to enter on a red carpet. Inside, Audrey Hepburn, Marilyn Monroe, and more than 650 PYTs mingled and sipped cocktails. Guests also got a first peek of the view-tastic 30-story high-rise as they were serenaded by a faux Frank Sinatra and fed by Cordúa Catering. Crystal-clear weather and martinis by the residence's stunning pool were special highlights, and so was the grand finale—as Sinatra crooned "New York, New York," canons filled the air with black and white confetti. —ER
